FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What is identity theft?

Identity theft is a fast-growing crime that claims a new victim every two seconds. It is defined as the misuse of another individual's sensitive information to fraudulently open credit accounts, use existing credit and banking assets, and even seek medical treatment. Sensitive data includes personally identifiable information (PII), such as Social Security numbers and financial account numbers, as well as protected health information (PHI). PII and PHI can be exposed in many ways—intentionally and unintentionally—including through human error, data theft, and hacking attacks on computing devices.

Is this an insurance product and do you need to file a claim to use the services?

No, absolutely not. These services are NOT an insurance product, therefore access to a fraud specialist does not require filing a claim.

Do you have to sign a power of attorney to get remediation services?

No, you will be assisted by a fraud specialist.

When should you call for fraud assistance?

If you suspect identity theft or wish to proactively protect your good name, call CyberScout's Resolution Center Support Team. Some examples of activity that should raise the red flag:

- Someone may have opened a credit card in your name.
- Your insurer sent you an Explanation of Benefits for treatments you never received.
- You're getting ready to go overseas for military service.
- Your house was recently broken into and you can't find your Social Security card and other personal documentation.
- Your car was stolen and your wallet was in it and contained personal information.
- You haven't received your W-2.
- You tried to file your tax return but someone already filed in your name.
- A major retail store contacted you to let you know that your personal information was involved in a breach.

How do you contact a fraud specialist?

They simply call their local Battle Creek Mutual Insurance Company agent. As soon as your eligibility is verified, you'll be connected to an experienced fraud specialist, who will provide unlimited assistance until their problem is resolved.
